Chelliah Committee Report on Tax reforms

*105. SHRIMATI CHANDRIKA ABHINANDAN JAIN: Will the Minister of FINANCE be pleased to state:

(a) whether the Raja Chelliah Committee on tax reforms has submitted its final report to Government; and

(b) if so, what are the details of the recommendations made by it and what is Government's decision thereon?

THE MINISTER OF STATE IN THE MINISTRY OF FINANCE (SHRI M. V. CHANDRASHEKHAR MURTHY): (a) and (b) The final report of the Tax Reforms Committee has been received. Part-I deals with, and makes recommendations on, issues in five broad areas:

(i) Problems of direct taxes not considered in the Interim Report, namely, corporate profits tax including the taxation of foreign entities, problems relating to business taxation, the interest tax, taxation of agricultural income and the gift tax.

(ii) Further reform of the system of domestic indirect taxes, particularly at the Central level, more details regarding the extension of Modified Value Added Tax (MODVAT) and conversion of Modvat into Value Added Tax (VAT).

(iii) Improvements in procedures, including appellate procedures, removal of complicated provisions and provisions unduly weighted against the assessee: direct taxes—customs and excise.

(iv) Problems of administration: Making administration more efficient and at the same time more humane and more aware of the broader aspects of taxation. Changes in administrative structure, facilities, emoluments, selection procedures at the higher levels, punishments and rewards.

(v) Revenue Audit—its role—the attitude of audit and the problems created for the assessees—lines of reform.

The committee's recommendations on VAT, personnel and administration, procedures, etc. pertaining to CBEC and CBDT are under examination.

In view of the large-scale changes in Central Excise and Customs duty structure, there was very little room for major changes in the direct taxes. Most of the recommendations of the Committee on Corporate Tax reforms and other related matters have, therefore, been postponed to next year.

The recommendation of the Chelliah Committee for the raising of the exemption limit for Gift Tax from Rs. 20,000 to Rs. 30,000 has been accepted and implemented.

Part-II of the Report gives the Committee's final recommendations on the changes to be effected in the duty structure relating to specific groups of industries and the time period within which changes should be brought about. It deals also with the restructuring of excise duties and review of exemption notification in the import tariff.

Following the broad thrust of the Chelliah Committee's recommendations, significant reduction in customs duties as well as rationalisation and simplification of excise duties have been effected as is reflected in the Finance Bill, 1993.

Both Part I and Part II of the final report have been published and copies have been placed in the Library of Parliament.
